Amazing books, a wonderful add to any home library or homeschool collection. My kids love receiving these books, they are humorous and honest about the life during these times. The graphics are well done, colorful and fun to look at. The writing is perfect for younger kids, yet perfect for older elementary age kids. We look forward to more adding more and more to our collection.

This is the story of Sir Francis Drake's voyage around the world told from the perspective of Francis Fletcher. It takes place on the GOLDEN HINDE, a ship that Drake took on his voyage around the world. It is a look at a famous sea voyage, written like it is giving advice to you on how to survive at sea, and every page has handy hints for the trip. My favorite advice is the page that says, "Aching and swollen joints? Bad breath? Bleeding gums? Teeth falling out? You have scurvy! Eat plenty of fresh fruit." This book is an awesome story for children (and even adults) who are interested in the Age of Exploration. The book is a non-fiction story. --Silas, Age 8

All of the "You Wouldn't Want to..." Books are fantastic!!! All are written by college and university professors and historians. While it's not light and fluffy kid reading, a lot of it is the hard truth about how terrible and often dangerous the real world in history has been. Great for the history buff, but the comic book style illustrations can grab a kid's attention (or someone with the attention of a kid). We have almost all of the books, my kids love them all.

I really learned a lot about Drake. What a gentleman. I am going to use this book in October when we study about explorers.

This book was so entertaining even I enjoyed reading it. It blended real facts with funny tidbits of the life and times of Sir Francis Drake. If your child has an explorer report to do and chooses Drake, by all means get this book!!
