A Bow Maker's Notebook: Sharing The Bow Making Experience Of John J Riggs Archery

Synopsis

This Notebook was written in the spirit of Primitive Archery: With the materials I had to work with... a pen, paper, and years of accumulated knowledge. It is not like some other "How to build a bow" books" as I go in depth into bow theory, the properties of different bow woods, and designs. It is simply written, but very in-depth. This book contains three project bows that reflect a great many techniques: A simple D bow made from a stave, a rawhide backed red oak longbow, as well as a sinew backed gull wing horse bow. Along with the project bows you will find experience, tips and tricks which will help you through your journey as bow makers. Thank you, John Riggs

Excellent book. Lots of good, practical information presented in a useful format. I would highly recommend this book especially if you are already somewhat familiar with bow making.

Very good book. The author goes into detail about building a safe and reliable bow, different bow woods and their properties, the tools used to make a bow, project bows you can try yourself, sinew backing, rawhide backing, and more. Highly recommend this book to anyone who is just starting out or who is an experienced bowyer who just wants some tips and tricks to add to their knowledge.

Lots of good information in this book. It is a copy of his hand written notes and freehand drawings. It was written using the materials he had....pen and paper. To someone who loves the bow this book has spirit.

I like John's dedication and passion for not only his Archery building skills, but also, his everyday job. Get to know John by his youtube site, and buy his book for some great information that keeps bow making more of an art and less of a science!
